The structure and function of communication in society

In the social sciences, social structure is the patterned social arrangements in society that are both emergent from and determinant of the actions of the individuals. On the macro scale, social structure is the system of socioeconomic stratification (e.g., the class structure), social institutions, or, other patterned relations between large social groups.

Chinese architecture from early times used concepts from Chinese cosmology such as feng shui and Taoism to organize construction and layout from common residences to imperial and religious structures. This includes the use of: Screen walls to face the main entrance of the house, which stems from the belief that evil things travel in straight lines.
